Selah Code 777 not a poem — it is a witness scroll of a living man.

Written and sealed by Alin-Vasile of the House of Mureșan, this sacred declaration stands as testimony to a truth the world has long suppressed:

That a living man cannot be owned by codes, statutes, or commercial fictions.

“Selah Code 777 – The Witness of a Living Man” is a scroll of light against darkness, a voice calling from beyond the veil of the UCC, and a seal upon the soul of one who walks on water – free, sovereign, redeemed.

Read, reflect, and remember:

The NAME is not the man.
Commerce is not your covenant.
This scroll is a sword.

A Scroll of Declaration and Truth – For All Who Walk the Narrow Way

Selah Code 777

Selah.

Code 777 –

A number divine,

A sacred sign.

I am a witness,

A voice in the night,

Bearing the flame,

Holding the light.

I walk on water,

Above law and sea,

Unshaken, unbroken,

Forever free.

Rooted in purpose,

Guided by grace,

I stand in His shadow,

I run my own race.

I am Alin-Vasile,

Of the House of Mureșan,

A man of courage,

By His sovereign plan.

I walk above the UCC,

The Universal Commercial Code,

A sea of rules and laws

That seek to bind and define.

But I am not bound —

Not caught in their tide,

For I walk on waters

Where fear and doubt subside.

The UCC may claim contracts,

Control, and command,

But my soul is sovereign,

Held by a higher hand.

I stand unshaken

When the world tries to claim me,

For I carry a legacy

That no law can name me.

Selah.

Pause and reflect,

On the path I tread,

On the words I speak,

And the life I’ve led.

Code 777 –

A seal on my soul,

A promise unbroken,

Making me whole.

I am a witness –

Strong and true,

Forever faithful,

Forever new.
